

March 5th, 2008

Statement from Warner Bros. Entertainment

We have recently been made aware that an individual or group of individuals has been contacting members of the public falsely claiming to be connected to or employed by Warner Bros. Entertainment. These individuals have been alleging that they are recruiting on behalf of Warner Bros. They have offered jobs that do not exist and have asked for personal details, including financial information, to be sent to them to secure the supposed job with Warner Bros.

We wish to advise that these individuals are in no way connected with Warner Bros. Entertainment and that these activities are wholly fraudulent. Warner Bros. Entertainment is taking steps to investigate and deal with this fraudulent activity.

For your information, some of the fraudulent correspondence has been using this email address - infowarnerbros@yahoo.co.uk. This address is not connected in any way with Warner Bros.

We advise that you do not give any personal information to these individuals. If you believe that you have been subject to this fraud, we advise that you contact your local law enforcement authorities immediately. Please also feel free to forward any fraudulent correspondence you may receive to the following email address: Corporate.CommsEMEA@warnerbros.com . Warner Bros. will then pass on that correspondence to the appropriate law enforcement authorities for their action.